Lawrence Democrat.

FRIDAY. May 30th 1890

A private dispatch states that twathirds of the delegatoin elected in Hamilton County yesterday are for Parterson. He will go into the convention with at least 500 votes, and no candidate with that many votes to begin with has ever been defeated in Tennessee.

There were some mighty good men latefy on the Hadden sidewho were for Patterson, Many of them have large bank accounts. Doubtless they contributed something from them in the effort to defeat Mr. Bethell. Does Mr. Clapp include them in his "syndicate of millionaires?"

The fight is over Patterson carries Shelby county. The wounds of the municipal contest are healed. The Democracy is again organized and on top to stay. The withdrawal of Clapp left but a bare struggle between Patterson and the Memphis Commercial, aided and abetted by a or meeting met and decided upfew Baxter and Buchanan men and uncompromising enemies of Patterson. The result is significant and is worthy of study About seven stockholders of the in the matter. Patterson's friends it was feared, would be apathetic. Indeed they would have been but for the continued demands that the Ciapp men should turn MEM AV test of principles, the tilt of logic and the arbitrament of the ballot box, be has never wavered, changed been recreant, or beenin even a small thing a timeserver. His talent's are natarally strong, as his character is, without fear. His mind is ripe of his resources firm and thorough. As a debater he has no peer in West Tennessee and but one in the whole Stace. As an orator nature has tayored him most rarely. His sentences are bold, striking and often penetrated with a vein of poetic fire and trequently his eloquence flames out in bursts of brilliant and passionate declamation. His voice would make common places charm the ear and it rings out with a clarion-like clearness that is at times electrifying.

Such in brief are a few of the traits which distinguish Shelby County's choice for the Governorship. He now occupies a conspicuous and a commanding position. The AVALANCHE beli ves that the star his destiny is rising rapidly-He has admirably maintained himself at all points, under all circumstances. But above all it should not be overlooked that he is a fine and ever-inspiring type of the American. A poor and untutored country boy, thrown upon his own resources, he has risen by the force of his own uature, winning at the same time breau and knowledge and gaining advancament by merit as he rose. He can fitly, and without straining for effect, be described in the noble lines of Tennyson

Who breaks his birth's invid-Who breaks his birth's invidious bar, and grasp the skirts of happy chance, and breasts the blows of circumstances, and grapples with his

Certainly he has the admiration respect and confidence of his neighbors who have given him, an unoquivocal indorsement.
